Great Men Who Outlived Their Hours of Fame.

Henry Watterson Tells of Statesmen, Nationally Famous, Who Became Pitiable Spectacles Amid Scenes They Once Adorned

Between the idiot and the man of sense, the funatie and the man of genius, there are degrees streaks of bliory and tunsey. How many expectant politicians elected to congress have entered Washington all hope, eager to dare and do, and have come away broken in benith, fame and fortune, happy to get back home sometimes unable to get away, to linger on in obscurity and poverty to a squalid and wretched old age.

I have lived long enough to have known many such: Senators who have filled the galleries when they rose to spenk; house heroes living while they could on borrowed money, then hanging about the hotels begging for money to buy a drink.

There was a famous statesman and orator who came to this at last, of whom the typical and characteristic story was told that the holder of a claim against the government, who dared not approach so great a man with so much as the intimation of a bribe, undertook by argument to interest him in the merit of the case.

The great man listened and replied: "I have noticed you scattering your means around here pretty freely, but you havent said 'turkey' to me."

Surprised, but glad and unabashed, the claimant said, "I was coming to that," produced a thousand-dollar bank roll and entered into an understanding want was to be done next day, when the bill was due on the calendar,

The great man took the money, repaired to a gambling house, had an extraordinary run of luck, won heavily, and playing all night, forgetting about his engagement, went to bed at dayight, not appearing in the Louse at nil. The bill was called, and there being nobody to represent it, under the rule it went over and to the bettem of the calendar, killing at for that ses-

The day after the claimant met his recolutrant attorney on the avenue face and face and took him to task for his delinquency,

"All, yes," said the great man, "you are the little rascal who tried to bribe me the other day. Here is your dirty motory. Take it and be off with you

The comment made by those who best knew the great mun was that if instead of winning in the gambling house he had lost be would have been up betimes at his piace in the house and doing he atmost to pass the claim ant's bill and get another fee.-Henry Watterson in Saturday Evening Post,

Watterson's Early Recollection. I was fond of going up to the capital and of playing amateur page in the house, of which my father had been a member and where he had many a page, writes Heary Watterson in the president of the United States, and to realize the meaning of it. He had been the oldest member of the bouse when my father was the youngest. He was John Quincy Adams.

By chance I was on the floor of the house when he fell in his place, and followed the excited and tearful throng when they bore him into the speaker's room, kneeling by the side of the sofa with an improvised fan and crying as if my heart would break.

Gum Chewing Popular in Far East. One can escape chewing gum by departing this life, but he cannot do so by merely taking leave of America. It has become virtually universal, due to the universality of mortal waywardness because of the energy and ingenuity of American advertisers. England resisted perpetual motion of the jaws for a long time, then fell; parts of Europe still hold out bravely, but it is in the eastern hemisphere that chewing gum's greatest and most successing ravages are to be found. The Chinese rickshaw coolie now has his gum; the Japanese geisha chews in rhythm with her duncing feet; and there are similar manifestations of the growing popularity of gum in Burma, Siam, India, the Dutch East lodies, the Philippines and Australia. Happily this token of civilization is not worse, but infinitely better, than the Orient's unwholesome betel nut, which it is to some degree supplanting .- Reliman

"The man who can meet emergen cies, who can rise to the occasion, is the man who will succeed," declares Charles M. Schwab, "like the chap who was one evening suddenly confronted by a discontented wife. She said.

"Refore we were married you used to bring me flowers every day, but new you never think of getting me even a bunch of violets."
"But my dear," he protested without a second's hesitation. The pretty flower girls don't attract me now as much as they used to."

"And, of course she told him that on second thought she really didn't care for flowers."

HOW CAN YOU TELL YOUR FAVORITE TOBACCO? As Plain as the Nose on Your

Face—Just Smell It

Smokers do not have to put tobacce in their pipes to find out if they like it. They can just rub the tobacco between the palms of their hands and smell it. The nose is an infallible guide to smoking enjoyment.

All smoking tobaccos employ some flavoring "to improve the flavour and burning qualities of the leaves", to quote the Encyclopedia Britannica. Naturally, there is considerable difference in the kind of flavorings used, and the nose quickly detects this difference. TUXEDO Tobacco uses the purest, fnost wholesome, and delicious of all flavorings—chocolate. And the almost universal liking for chocolate in a great measure explains the widespread popularity of TUXEDO Tobacco.

Carefully aged, old Burley tobacco.

Carefully aged, old Burley tobacco, plus a dash of pure chocolate, gives TUXEDO Tobacco a pure lingrance your nose can quickly distinguish from any other tobacco. Try it and see.
